Empire caps off milestone project at Etobicoke waterfront

Empire Communities celebrated a milestone occasion at one of its signature projects on Sept. 14 — Eau Du Soleil along the Etobicoke Waterfront.

Empire recently completed the roof of the Water Tower, with the topping off of the Sky tower to come late this year.

The development at the foot of Park Lawn and Lakeshore boasts two towers — the Water Tower, at 50 storeys, and the Sky Tower at 67 — with a total of 1,285 residential units, from 400 to 2,000 sq. ft., one-bedroom plus den to three-bedroom units.

Add 55,000 sq. ft. of commercial space — retailers, restaurants and more — over three floors, and you have the makings of a new self-contained, lakefront community.

For Empire, and for this part of the Etobicoke area of Toronto, it's a significant event.

"This is the biggest project in the history of Empire," Tim Royds, chief operating officer, told the Toronto Sun. "And quite likely the biggest construction site in the city right now."

The project is about 99 per cent sold, Royds says, with only a handful of large terrace suites and penthouses available.

Eau Du Soleil residents are expected to begin moving in February 2019, and will likely continue for about a year.

Located in the Humber Bay Shores neighbourhood, Eau Du Soleil's lakeside address boasts views of downtown Toronto and Lake Ontario, and west to Mississauga and beyond.

Building amenities will include a fitness centre, 24-hour concierge, indoor saltwater pool and hot tub, terrace with outdoor barbecues, party and theatre rooms, and a public park space.

Driving along the Gardiner Expressway or Lake Shore Boulevard, or cycling along the Martin Goodman Trail by the lake, the two towers with sloped rooftops create a striking impression.

"For this community here by the lake, it helps bookend the area's development," says Royds. "It's really the last piece to go on the waterfront, and it's the biggest."

"From an architectural design, in my estimation it's the nicest design of all the buildings down here, so it really is a way to finish off this community."

"We're firm believers in this area — the Humber Shores neighbourhood in South Etobicoke is a hidden gem," adds Sue MacKay, vice-president of marketing for Empire.

"The proximity to the city and the downtown core... you're close but you're not right in it. And the ability to access Yonge and Front in 15 minutes on your bike, or the Mimico GO Station or other transit... You have the ability to move around easily, and that's attractive."

Empire is celebrating its 25th anniversary this year, and nearing completion at Eau Du Soleil is an important step for the company, one of the largest real estate developers in Canada.

"It's funny, you have your head down and you're doing your day-to-day work, and you sometimes forget the magnitude of what we've undertaken with this site," says MacKay. "It's days like this and we all celebrate together and you see the massive volume of people that are on the site and are part of it to actually make it happen. It's a pretty proud moment for us."
